

PEACE ON THE FIELD.

Quiet Replaces Turmoil on British Front in Belgium.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN BELGIUM, Nov. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Peace descended like a mantle over the battlefield at 11 o'clock this morning. The last big gun crashed its challenge and a great, overpowering quiet replaced turmoil, death and destruction.

Almost coincident with the signing of the armistice by the desperate enemy the city of Mons capitulated before relentless British pressure. On this hallowed ground the troops now are resting on their arms, happy in the thought of the fitness of their final triumph. They had driven the enemy out by the same gateway through which Field Marshal Buelow and Field Marshal von Kluck hurled their great armies against the valiant little force of "contemptibles" in 1914.

The population of Mons today paraded the streets, cheering madly their deliverers. Their glad cries must have reached the ears of the Germans outside the walls of the town.

Early this morning a crisp, graphic order to cease fire at 11 o'clock was distributed to all units with a further order to maintain defensive precautions, and to have no intercourse with the enemy. The advance continued, the guns racing forward to the advance batteries, seeking the honor of firing the final shot.

Punctually at 11 o'clock the firing stopped. Fleets of British airplanes dropped showers of signal lights which descended with the momentous message to those below.

There was joy in plenty among the British troops at the first blush of peace, but there was little in the nature of demonstrations. Tommy Atkins was unable to realize that the announcement was true, although his heart was burning with the hope of going back to his wife and baby in "Blighty." So he stood and waited for something to happen, he knew not what.

This could not be the end after all the shambles and horror he had been through. One of those tattered and mud-caked veterans came to the correspondent's automobile and as he saluted asked: "Is it over?"

Being reassured, he sped back to his companions to communicate the good news. This afternoon the celebrations and rejoicing were making the old town of Mons vibrate. Bands of pipers were marching by thousands about the city. The reception given the Canadian commanders who entered Mons in the middle of the afternoon was similar in his heartiness to the scenes in Valenciennes and other liberated towns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Preparations for final peace negotiations will engross American and allied statesmen during the next few weeks, while Marshal Foch and the naval commanders see to it that the terms of armistice which ended the war today are carried out. Thirty days is the armistice period, and since it hardly will be possible to assemble the greatest peace conference in history within that time, an extension practically is certain to be granted by the victors and accepted by the vanquished.

What happens in Germany in what once was Austria-Hungary and in Russia during the meantime probably will govern the solution of many of the complex problems awaiting the conference.

Absorbed in the celebration of the German surrender, the officials today were unwilling to even discuss for publication the next steps to be taken to secure the fruits of victory and make future wars, at least on so vast a scale impossible. But in a general way what is to be expected already is known. The various utterances of President Wilson and the premiers and public men of the entente countries all have been carefully studied by those who must plan the next step and at one time or another these spokesmen have touched upon nearly every idea that might be properly included in the treaties. This is particularly true of President Wilson's declarations which represent, not only the ideas of the American government, but from their almost unqualified acceptance by the entente powers, may be regarded as already constituting the framework which can be clothed with the details necessary to round out a complete fabric of peace negotiations.

This framework in all probability will be put into final shape by discussions among the chiefs of the victorious powers long before the representatives of the vanquished are called in to accept or plead for modification of what is to be dictated to them.

The preliminary work is expected to be carried on much as the armistice terms were prepared, the nations which have taken the largest part in the war and whose voices consequently are entitled to greatest weight, preparing the outline with the spokesmen of the many others with aspirations to be satisfied joining in the discussions when their interests are involved.

Violent Changes to Be Handled.

Probably the violent changes in the existing conditions which will result from the enforcement of the terms of the armistice will powerfully strengthen the earnest desire of all nations concerned to have the final arrangements made at the earliest possible moment.

One of the most weighty problems connected with geographical rearrangements—the future of Alsace-Lorraine—already practically has been settled by the acceptance of President

Wilson's declaration for righting the wrong of 1870, which means unconditional return of the province to France. In his address to congress today in connection with the armistice, President Wilson indicated another serious problem that must engage the attention of the peace conference—the question of the stability and competency of the governments with which covenants of peace are to be made.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—President Wilson, with Mrs. Wilson at his side, in an open automobile, drove from the White House to the capitol and back tonight to see war-time Washington's celebrations of peace.

The presidential machine flanked by others carrying secret service men, was forced to proceed at a snail-like pace with the congested traffic on Pennsylvania avenue where the principal demonstrations were held, but the president was recognized by only a few in the crowds until he was returning to the White House.

As the machine turned into Fifteenth street a sailor carrying a large American flag pushed through the throng and held the emblem over Mr. Wilson's head. The president rose and saluted and a great cheer went up from the crowds. The president remained standing for two blocks, bowing and waving a small American flag.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 11.—Ten thousand Boise citizens disregarded Spanish influenza restrictions this afternoon and joined in a jubilee that shook the downtown district with its noise. In the evening the celebration was resumed and continued until far into the night. A parade that jammed the streets was a feature of the afternoon. It ended at the capitol steps where speeches were made by prominent citizens. Ideal weather added vim to the celebration. Governor Alexander issued a proclamation calling for a holiday and business was suspended over practically the entire state for the afternoon.

SALVATION ARMY LASSIES PRAY

Nearly 10,000 Kneel on New York Public Library Steps and Offer Prayer of Thanksgiving.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Nearly 10,000 Salvation army lassies, kneeling today on the steps of the public library in a prayer of thanksgiving for victory in the world war, opened Greater New York's drive for its quota of $170,500,000 to be raised in the United war work campaign this week. Before night more than $8,000,000 in gifts and pledges had been reported.

As the Salvation Army workers, many of them in overseas uniforms, rose from their devotions, which were led by commander Booth, the big crowd which had turned out to celebrate victory cheered the workers and showered them with contributions.

Among subscriptions today were $250,000 each from the American Car and Foundry company; United States Rubber company and Utah Copper company; $100,000 each from the Chicago Copper company and the American Locomotive company.

Individual subscriptions included Charles Hayden, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schiff, $100,000 each; Mrs. William C. Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perkins, and Mrs. William D. Sloane, $50,000 each.

KAISER ABANDONS TRAIN FOR MOTOR

Shots Fired Endangered Life—Joins Officers on Station Platform at Eysden.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A special dispatch from Eysden, Holland, says that when William Hohenzollern's train arrived there he was not aboard. Later he arrived by motorcar, having abandoned the train because of shots fired at the window of his car.

He joined his officers on the platform of the station of Eysden. He was looking haggard but walked up and down the platform slowly, until the train was ready to leave.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from the Hague dated Sunday says the former empress of Germany was not on board the train, and that no women were among the party.

The dispatch is dated Sunday, asserts it was the intention of the former emperor to remain on board the train at Eysden, throughout the night and leave Monday morning for internment in a chateau between Utrecht and Arnhem. It was added his suite would be interned at Arnhem.

A dispatch attributed to the Maas-richt, Holland, Handelsblad, says the presence of the former German crown prince with the Hohenzollern party has not been confirmed, but that it is known former Prince Joachim and General von Falkenhayn were with the former emperor.

On the other hand the Daily Mail describes the ex-emperor and the former crown prince walking on opposite ends of the Eysden platform without exchanging words.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—William Hohenzollern's flight was hailed tonight by the American friends of German democracy as "a complete vindication of the distinction our society has always believed to exist between the peaceful people and their late government."

"In this solemn hour when the German people are to be delivered from the bondage of dynastic interests, we whose forefathers were 'forty-eighters' look back at the inspiration that motivated our ancestors and we see the vindication of their efforts in the freedom that victory will bring to the German people of today," read a statement issued by the society and signed by its president, Franz Sigel. Had the German democrats and republicans of 1848 been victorious, the unspeakable crimes for which imperial Germany will be held responsible would have been spared us."

Pope Sends Letter to Archbishop of Warsaw on War

ROME, Friday, Nov. 8.—Pope Benedict has written an apostolic letter to Dr. A. Kakowski, archbishop of Warsaw, in which he says that in the grave period through which Europe is passing he cannot resist the impulse to show his affection for the Polish nation with words of comfort and hope. History, he adds, has written in golden letters what Christianity and European civilization owe to Poland, but also records how badly she has been rewarded.

After centuries of repression, continues the pontiff, Poland lives as ever. He recalls the attachment of the church to Poland in the nation's darkest days, as well as at the zenith of her glory. Pope Clement XIV energetically protested to the powers against the dismemberment of Poland, as did several of his successors. Documents in the archives of the vatican relating to Poland, will show the almost indescribable martyrdom of the Polish nation.

"But, thanks to God," he adds, "dawn of resurrection for Poland is finally breaking. We raise our most ardent prayers that, soon having regained full independence, she may continue her history as a civilized Christian nation."

"Contemporaneously we wish that all other nationalities, even non-Catholic, once subject to Russia may decide their own fate, developing and prospering in their confidence and love for Poland."

CENSORSHIP TO BE ABANDONED.
